BAY ST. LOUIS, MISSISSIPPI, THURSDAY, JUNE 23, 1960

Back Guard, Ladner Asks At Armory

Officers and men of the 134th Transportation Co. dedicated their new $75,000 armory on the Old Kiln Road Saturday afternoon, before a crowd of about 100.

Heber Ladner, secretary of the state of Mississippi, delivered the dedication address, urging the people of the community to support the men of the 134th.

"Our country has to be ready for any incident which could pulse this nation into war," said Ladner, "and these are the boys who will protect us if war does come. Our freedom was purchased at a terrific sacrifice and these young officers and men continue to sacrifice their time and ability and their lives if need be to keep us free from aggression. They deserve all the help and support the community can give," he said.

Master of ceremonies, Maj. C. Staley, executive officer of 134th Transportation Co., Biloxi, introduced several other platform guests, including Maj. Gen. William P. Wilson, Mississippi Adjutant General, Mayor John Scaife, Clarence Ladner, county representative, Col. D. Van Court, CO 134th Trans. Co., Col. Philip Shaw, commanding officer 890th Engineers, Capt. Irvin S. Kingston, CO of the 134th Mrs. Thomas J. Bourgeois, auxiliary president, and the Rev. A. M. Ellison, who delivered the invocation and benediction.

Uniforms and equipment were on display, and company officers were on hand to answer questions. Refreshments were served by the auxiliary following the dedication address.

Saturday night, Miss Carol Johnson was crowned Miss 134th Transportation Co. of the local National Guard at Saturday night's contest, she was whisked away for the first dance by one of the Guard officers who judged the event.

School Board Faces Personnel/Vacancies

Faced with several key faculty vacancies, the county board of education will resume its efforts to secure personnel at a special meeting at 9 a.m. Saturday with Leo Rouse, new North Central School principal, on hand for the deliberations.

The board needs qualified English teachers, a librarian and social science instructor for North Central, previous efforts to fill the posts having failed.

B. P. McCormick, English teacher there who helped with the dramatics program, appeared at a recessed session last Saturday to bid farewell as he plans to return to his home in the East in the fall. He expressed regret at leaving the school and county, observing that the board faces a big problem in securing teachers unless it can pay them more.

One vacancy was filled when the appointment was approved of Luke Caruso as teacher and coach at Gulfview School. Also on the Gulfview front, Principal Paul Langphere was directed to proceed with additional repairs to his dwelling at a cost of $35.

On the motion of Mrs. C. C. McDonald, it was voted to put Mrs. Gerald Kennedy of the North Central faculty on a one year trial basis as full-time guidance counselor for the whole district. She taught three commercial classes last year as well as limited guidance work.

The question of responsibility for legal advertising of the board provoked a sharp exchange of words between Superintendent K. G. McCarty and Walter J. Phillips, attorney for the board. It came up because four private contract bus routes had not been advertised last week as the board had expected. Phillips explained his position was advisor to the board in legal matters with McCarty as secretary of the board to draw up advertisements and handle other matters. The attorney said he had helped check bills since the new administration took over in January as a service to the board and was happy to be of all help possible.

McCarty replied that the bills and the budget were his job "and let me do it." Phillips countered, "I don't want you to think I'm taking your responsibility," adding that he would much prefer not to be so encumbered with

5 Point Drains Eyed

Drainage situation at the intersection of Hancock, Third and Union Streets, known as 5-points, may not be as bad as it was believed, Mayor John A. Scaife said today.

After receiving no answers to advertisements for bids, city officials employed Lucien Raymond, local surveyor, to survey and analyze the problem, the intersection having flooded and part of the road washed out during recent heavy rains.

Raymond reported to city officials after an initial survey that he believed the trouble was due to blockage in the culverts and drainage pipes. It was first necessary to locate the underground pipes and concrete coupling blocks, no manholes having been provided, he said, which Initial construction at the new North Bay Shopping Center is slated to get under way in early July when ground will be broken for a $100,000 project to house the Bay Bowling Center.

Legion Plans Annual July 4 Beach Party

Plans are complete for the annual Fourth of July celebration presented by the members and auxiliary of Clement R. Bontemps Post 139, American Legion.

The fair which will be again held on the Bay St. Louis public beach, will be held Saturday and Sunday, July 2 and 3.

Swimming, picnicking, and general entertainment including games for the entire family will be included. Donations are being solicited for the cake booth. Anyone wishing to contribute a home-baked cake is asked to call Legionnaires Felix Seeger or Warren Buehler.

An outstanding fireworks display is also on the agenda and a new feature will be the auxiliary-operated lunch counter.

The new development will be located on a triangle bounded by U. S. 90, Dunbar and Ulman Avenues, one block from the new hospital, health center, public school and three of the newest subdivisions in Bay St. Louis.

Mrs. Dorothy Yaryan of S. Beach Blvd., owner of the new bowling alley, said she expects to have that structure ready for opening about Oct. 1. The six-lane center will be at the corner of Dunbar and U. S. 90 with an unlimited parking area. A complete line of Brunswick Gold Crown equipment will be used with ball lockers for men and women, league meeting space, a snack shop and a professional shop. Automatic pinsetters will be used.

The operator plans to organize a special bowling program for youngsters and a women's groups in addition to regular league activity and schedules

Auto Mishap Hurts Two; Another Fatal to Horse

A seven-year-old girl was injured and the horse she was riding killed in a freak accident on Third Street, Bay St. Louis, about 9:45 a.m. Monday.

According to witnesses, Jeanie Morel, daughter of Mrs. Iris Morel, Third Street, was riding a horse owned by Eugene Dillman on Third near Keller Streets when the horse became frightened by a truck, reared, whirled into the street and brought its front hooves down on a Plymouth car driven by Mrs. Sam Benigno.

The horse, Princess, was killed and the child thrown to the ground and knocked unconscious. She was taken to Hancock General Hospital where she was treated by Dr. A. K. Martinovich Jr. who said yesterday afternoon that she was doing fine. Injuries were a mild concussion, black eye, possible fractured arm and bruises about the face, he said.

Mrs. George Powers, mother of Mrs. Benigno, was riding in the seat next to the driver and said the car was traveling about 10 miles per hour when the accident happened. She was holding the Sam Benigno's daughter, Lavernia, when she saw the horse rear and the hoofs come through the windshield. She protected the child with her body and received bruises of the head and shoulder but was not hospitalized.

Two Kiln residents were injured and their cars damaged extensively as the result of an accident at 8:40 p.m. Saturday while driving to Bay St. Louis on the Kiln Road.

Deputy Sheriff Gerald Price Jr. said Monday that investigating officer, deputy sheriff Charles Keller, reported that A. J. Cuevas, about 18, was driving south on the Kiln Road when he saw a car pulling a boat and trailer across the Jordan River bridge. Cuevas said that because of the narrowness and bad condition of the bridge he pulled to the right side of the road in

First Drowning Mars Jordan Isles Bay's Summer Season Bridge Status Is Protested

Arthur Louis Gianelloni, 37, a native of Baton Rouge, La., and resident of North Beach, Bay St. Louis, for the past year drowned about 3:30 p.m. Monday while sailing near Bay-Waveland Yacht Club.

A jury empaneled by Coroner Emile G. Piazza rendered a verdict of accidental drowning. Piazza said witnesses told him the body was found floating, apparently held on the surface of the water by air in the shirt and light coat he was wearing. The head was submerged, he said.

He had been given artificial respiration from the time he was taken into the boat until pronounced dead at Hancock General Hospital. Exact time of death was not determined but Piazza said it was about three minutes from the time the last call for help was heard until the body was recovered. Members of the jury were Edward J. Price Jr., Arthur Garcia, Gerald V. Price Jr., Alcine Saudier, Woodrow Lafontaine and John T. Jacobs. Bailiff was General V. Price Sr.

Gianelloni, a graduate of St. Stanislaus, had been employed by a sugar company in Cuba for a number of years and had arrived in the Bay a week ago for a visit with his family. He had gone for a sail on sun fish type 13-foot boat and it is believed he may have slipped off during a sudden rain storm.

Mrs. E. P. Larroux, who was on the yacht club pier said she and ran back to the shore and told Clayton J. Charbonnet Jr. that a man was drowning. Charbonnet summoned Edward Heath who immediately started his cruiser type boat and sped to Gianelloni's aid with young Charbonnet, Ned Heath and Larry Larroux aboard. Charbonnet said he could hear the calls for help but by the time they approached the scene the calls had stopped. He said the body was found floating with the head under water while the sail boat was drifting a short distance away. Attempts to pull the body out of the water failed. Charbonnet said, and they tied it with a rope until a smaller boat came. The victim was taken to the yacht club where two men gave artificial respiration, apparently to no avail. Charbonnet said.

In addition to his family he is also survived by a cousin, Max A. Gianelloni of 101 Sycamore St.

U.S. Approves $4,943 Toward County Schools

The Hancock County School District has been certified to get $4,943 immediately as financial assistance for its school in federally affected areas.

U. S. Rep. William M. Colmer notified R. E. Webb, principal of Hancock North Central School who conducted the survey of parents' occupations to determine how much the county was entitled to, that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has approved payment in this amount.

Colmer noted that the district's tentative entitlement for fiscal 1960 is $4,591.

The allowance is under Public Law 874 which provides for aid toward the education of children whose parents are employed at government installations or businesses with government contracts.

Webb conducted the survey of pupils in the district's system early this year at the direction of the county board of education.

Representing a group of property owners in Jordan River

Isles Subdivision, Richard E. Johnson of New Orleans told the county board of supervisors Monday that people who had purchased lots in the subdivision were unable to build on their property because of the condition of one of three bridges in the subdivision and asked the county's help in replacing the bridges.

Board attorney Sam L. Favre Jr. said the bridges were built by the developers of the subdivision and under present law the county could do nothing but suggested the property owners contribute enough to put the bridges in good condition. Then the county could assume maintenance, he said.

Johnson was introduced at the short recessed meeting by A. G. Dantagan, local realtor, who offered his cooperation in the matter and suggested that the property owners form an organization for the betterment of the subdivision.

The property is located in the vicinity of Main Street and Jordan River. It was developed by Jordan River Isles, Inc.

Johnson said the lots were purchased in good faith and produced a picture showing the bridge with a large hole in the middle. Attorney Favre said this was the first complaint of its kind. He noted the board was cooperating with city officials in forming a planning commission to study future subdivisions to see that they meet certain regulations but the decisions of the commission would not be retroactive.

Members pointed out that the subdivision was in Beat 5 and that Supervisor R. G. Hubbard Jr. was out of town but that he had told the developers the Fooling, Maybe?

The Southern Railroad, or if you prefer, the Southern Railway System, has done much for the area it serves. From our personal knowledge it has been instrumental in bringing many industries to the Piedmont area of the Carolinas. In so doing it was not giving something for nothing; the Southern expected that it would get the freight business of these new manufacturing businesses and it did.

Currently this railroad, along with others including our Louisville and Nashville, are advertising their passenger service and the reduced rates for round-trip and family trips they inaugurated earlier this month. We hope they get the increased passenger business they presumably want. Basically, because of subsidies to their competitors in one form or another, we have been driven to be pro-railroads, although we deny we are prejudiced.

One thing bothers us. Last Friday we saw in the Columbia, S. C., Southern Railway station a purported copy of an advertisement of the company ostensibly asking the public to ride the Southern Railroad's passenger trains and pointing out the new rates and the company's desire to furnish passenger service. The ad did say they hoped to discontinue some of their present trains and rather pointedly and effectively said to the public that, if people didn't ride the trains, they'd try to get rid of even more of them.

All of this makes sense except one thing. Presumably any business advertises, if it does at all, where it might have prospective customers. The Southern's ad, according to the poster in its station in Columbia, was run in the New York Times, in the Wall Street Journal (Eastern and Western editions) and in Baron's magazine. Who are they trying to fool. They don't operate a train within miles of the city of publication of any of the three.

Building up a good case for discontinuance of more trains, perhaps?

Help Your Neighbor

Next week the annual Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo takes over in neighboring Gulfport. While primarily of financial advantage to Harrison County and Gulfport, its sponsors have tried to make it something for the whole Mississippi coast.

It is a real promotion for our area and this year Hancock County should have an above average interest in this sporting event. The queen for the rodeo is Miss Gayle Parker of Bay St. Louis, the honorary president of the association is Mr. Ed P. Ortte of Clermont Harbor and Miss Christine Torgersen of Waveland is a princess.

Even if others are more directly interested financially than we are, the event is of some direct economic help to our county and, in a long range sense, may be of major assistance to the growth of the Mississippi Coast. After all, what helps our neighbor also helps us.

Interspectively, we hope the fishing enthusiasts of Hancock County and our people generally will warmly support this major sporting event — the biggest in our area.

We are indebted to Mr. Dudley Andry of New Orleans and Waveland, manager of the New Orleans Safety Council, for the cartoon on this page. Water safety as well as highway safety is important, particularly during this season in the Bay-Waveland area.

Congressional Sidelights By Gone Days

By Rep. WILLIAM M. COLMER

ADJOURNMENT DRIVE

The Congress last week began overtime sessions in an effort to meet its adjournment deadline of July 9. That is the Saturday before the Democratic Convention opens on Monday, July 11, in Los Angeles. The Republican Convention follows on July 25 at Chicago. Then campaigning begins in earnest, and members of Congress, naturally, want to be at home in their districts. No one likes to consider the possibility that Congress might have to recess for the conventions and return to wind up in an atmosphere of partisan politics. The prospect of the probable nominees for President confronting each other in the Senate is unprecedented.

Legislation always piles up toward the end of a session, but the logjam this year seems unusually large and complex. It is large mainly because some three months of the session were consumed in making a gesture toward the minority vote through the "civil wrongs" bill, and it has been complicated by numerous other political considerations in this election year. Further, the committees of both House and Senate continue to add to the pile of legislation at the rate of some 10 or 12 new bills a day.

Obviously, something must give. All of these bills cannot be passed, and someone must decide which are to be pushed and which dropped. The important but sometimes unhappy task of making these decisions falls primarily on the leadership of the two houses plus, in the lower body, the Rules Committee. As a result, we have found ourselves button-holed several times a day recently by Members interested in some pet legislation. There are possibly some 75 to 100 bills pending before the Committee, and the pressure to life the lid on the boiling pot keeps rising.

Among the more important and often controversial proposals remaining to be finally disposed of are nine appropriation bills, including that for the Defense Department, medical care, other social security provisions, minimum wage, Federal aid for education, housing, several veterans bills, arm legislation, foreign aid, Federal pay raises.

15 YEARS AGO

June 22, 1945—While on a fishing trip to Carabel, Fla., last week with her husband, W. J. Gex Jr., Dr. M. J. Wolfe and Mrs. A. B. Vassalli, Mrs. Gex caught a 39-pound King Mackerel during a deep sea fishing trip. This, according to best information is the largest of its kind to be caught in that section.

25 YEARS AGO

June 21, 1935—A marked increase in tennis is being shown by the younger set in Bay St. Louis. Tung Oil Price Support Is Due

June 30 is the last day producers can obtain loans and purchase agreements on 1959 crop tung oil, according to the Hancock Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Office.

Loans are available on tung oil stored in approved warehouses. The borrower has the option of redeeming by repaying the loan principal plus 3.5 per cent interest any time prior to Oct. 31. Where the borrower elects to forfeit the tung oil at maturity in lieu of repayment, he is not required to pay any interest.

If a producer does not want a loan he can obtain price support by executing a purchase agreement. This does not restrict the producer in any way. He may dispose of the tung oil at any time and by any method he desires. In accordance with the agreement, CCC will purchase the eligible tung oil on or as soon after the loan maturity date as possible.

Additional information may be obtained from the office in the Agricultural Building, Bay St. Louis.

County Agent Notes By O. O. Swords

FARM SAFETY

National Farm Safety week is just about a month away. That does not mean that it is too soon to think and practice safety.

To make our farms safer, here are some tips:

Drownings account for a fourth of the fatal accidents on Mississippi farms. Only two states have a higher death rate from this cause. Make your farm ponds safe. Permit only supervised swimming. Keep some rescue equipment — long pole, life preservers with rope attached or a boat on hand.

In a three-state region that includes Mississippi, machinery is the leading cause of fatal farm accidents. Make sure you use the safety devices that are built onto the tractor. Stop the machinery before making any adjustment. Remember, where machinery is concerned, haste often makes waste. . . waste of human life and health.

Farm chemicals are in heavy use in this state. They can be directed and stored them safely.

DAIRY MANAGEMENT

Worried about holding up milk production during hot weather? It can be done?

Hot weather is a time when good management pays big dividends. Give the cows lush temporary pastures like Sudan or millet. Give them plenty of clean, cool water and shade in each pasture and loafing area.

Make sure you give the cows some supplemental feeding if pastures get short. Keep the flies off the cows. . . they suck blood and cut production as much as 25 per cent.

Give your cows free access

Exchange Pupil Views Contrast In U.S. and German Education

The contrasting approach of the Americans and the West Germans to education was viewed by Detlef Quandt, young German exchange student who has been spending the last year in this county, in a talk to the Women of Christ Episcopal Church who sponsored his stay here.

Detlef will be feted by the House of Young Episcopal Churchmen at 6 p.m. Monday with a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Warts Jr. before his departure Tuesday for New York and return to his homeland. He has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. James Mayfield in Waveland since last August.

The youth, who was graduated in May from Bay High School, still faces two more years before he can get his diploma from the school he attends in West Germany. As he sees it, the advantage of the American system is that it is more practical, with more emphasis on book knowledge and one learns to acknowledge classmates who are "not so smart."

In the latter instance, he referred to the German system of separating students by ability and interests after four years of grammar school. Nine more years of high school follow for those qualified and because so few can go, the standard is much higher, Detlef continued. "We don't need to consider the slow learner... it is very hard and the only way to get to a university."

With the emphasis on facts in American teaching, he expressed disappointment that there is little discussion in class. He was told of many activities in American schools and said he had not found that so, except for the important role played by sports. German students attend school six days a week, spending Saturdays for activities only.

Detlef remarked on the long summer holidays here compared with six weeks at his school. Three weeks are given at Easter and Christmas which give students time to travel, read, work on hobbies and the like.

He told the church women that a girl from Rolling Fork, Miss., will attend his school in Germany next year under the exchange program and expressed appreciation to the women for making possible his American studies this year.

BEAUTY TIPS

by Mercedes Spahr

ACCEPT NO SUBSTITUTE
There is no substitute for a good permanent wave. Pause a moment consider this. A lady could use soap and water, instead of a face cream. She might buff her nails, and skip the polish. But there's just one way to put "permanent" curl and body in her hair!

YOUR WAVE-THE FOUNDATION FOR BEAUTY-No hair style, even the softest, can hold its shape without a permanent wave. Hair won't comb in the direction you want it to, hold an unwavering fashion line time after time, without a foundation of permanent waving. That's why we consider the permanent wave our most important professional service to you.

Permanents are improving constantly - Every permanent wave you get is better than the last. Manufacturers in the beauty field never stop improving permanent waves and developing new ones. In beauty science laboratories, cosmetic chemists spend many days and months devising new formulas, testing new chemicals-developing their skills to your beauty. This is why we consider it our duty to keep abreast of every development in the field. We train ourselves to give you the wave that's better than any other for your own hair problem, your own personal desires. We carry several kinds of waves in our salon - so we can prescribe your permanent, make it personally yours. So do yourself a personal favor. Talk over your next wave with us!

For further beauty advice call HO 7-5202, Mercedes' Beauty Salon, Forest Ave. Clermont Harbor.

FROM UNDER THE DRYER: The happiest people are those who keep their hearts softer than their heads.
